Federal Executives To Visit Peoria For Business Conference

CPYRIGHT

Approximately 20 federal executives will participate in a business operations conference here Sunday and Monday.

The conference is part of an educational program conducted by the Brookings Institution of Washington, D.C. to give government officers a keener insight into the operations and problems of major corporations.

CONFEREES MET first in Chicago last Sunday and will remain in session there through Saturday. After Peoria they will go to St. Louis for a similar conference Oct. 26-29. The Chicago-Peoria-St. Louis meetings are the second in a series. The opener was held in the East last May.

The business operations conference is a sequel to a series of educational programs for business executives on the federal government's operations conducted by the Brookings Institution the past five years.

"Teachers" in Peoria will be four Caterpillar Tractor Co. executives. On Sunday night at Hotel Pere Marquette the government people will hear from Caterpillar President William Blackie.
